Update Policy 1207: Misconduct in Research

Background

Policy 1207 on Misconduct in Research was revised in Spring 2024 in response to federal Department of Human and Health Services requirements to be eligible to receive federal funding. Subsequent changes to HHS policy require further minor revisions. Dr. Craig LaMunyon submitted proposed revisions for Policy 1207 in order to ensure CPP's continued compliance with federal policy and eligibility to receive federal funding.

Discussion

The committee met with Dr. LaMunyon to discuss the proposed changes and ask questions, in case there were aspects of the new guidelines or the proposal that might have consequences we were not aware of.

The proposed changes (1) clarify the meaning of 'sequestering' materials in cases of misconduct; (2) spell out the requirements on the university for publicizing the policy; and (3) explicitly link items in the policy to the updated HHS guidelines. Dr. LaMunyon clarified that the changes do not affect the definition of misconduct in research. Nor will the changes affect any investigatory procedures, the burden of proof, or any of the consequences for misconduct in research. The committee had some concerns about the policy applying retroactively to January 1, 2026. Those concerns were addressed by the fact that the updated policy does not change the definitions or consequences of misconduct in research.

Dr. LaMunyon also explained that under the Misconduct in Research policy, all investigations are conducted internally, by Cal Poly Pomona employees and our Office of Research and Sponsored Programs (ORSP).

Furthermore, passage of the edits is needed promptly to ensure that CPP can continue to apply for and receive funds from HHS. In addition, Dr. LaMunyon shared that other agencies may use current HHS guidelines for their grant programs as well, so that a failure to update the policy could affect grants from sources other than HHS.
